Cole Rodocker is a corporate commercial lawyer who has practiced law in British Columbia since 2018.

As a corporate commercial lawyer, Cole has a wide array of experience helping clients both big and small in many aspects of their businesses. From shareholder and contractual disputes to insurance, administrative tribunal and regulatory issues, Cole has a broad practice that is always focused on arriving at practical, cost-effective and timely solutions.

Cole has worked at large national and international firms and has experience working with fortune 500 companies in addition to smaller privately-owned companies. Regardless of the size or scope of a project, Cole dedicates his full time and attention to seeking the best outcomes possible.

Prior to becoming a practising lawyer, Cole graduated as the Law Society of BC Gold Medalist for the TRU Law Class of 2016 and clerked for 6 Justices of the BC Supreme Court. Cole is also conversationally fluent in Mandarin.

In his spare time, Cole enjoys cooking, the outdoors, and doting on his newborn son.
